Preamble

A leave of absence for compassionate care is presently granted in accordance with existing Board policy, administrative application, or as provided in contractual agreements in effect at the time of leave. Extended compassionate care leave is a request from an employee to take additional time off work to provide care or support for a close family member who has a significant risk of death.

The Service Canada Employment Insurance Act advised that an employer has an obligation to grant this leave up to sixteen (16) weeks, without loss of job or seniority.

The Service Canada Employment Insurance Act under their qualification criteria governs the granting of extended compassionate care benefits. The employer grants the leave, Employment Insurance pays the benefits.
